

THE AMETHYST TABLET OF AYYAPPAN:

Revealed to Betty-

6/22/24

The ancient Hebrews called me "Hayah" notwithstanding the fact that the Jews hid this name by scrambling the letters. They inherited the magic square that they used to scramble the letters from Sumer, and the wise men of Eridu, who called me "EA." The magic square of Eridu was already part of the confounded and polluted language however. The pure language was confounded because the wise men of Babylon who had subjugated Eridu, and who worshipped Marduk, or Michael, had outlawed the pure language for fear that the people might gain power. The language that they substituted it with was confusing because it was made for encoding secret combinations, such as the magic square of Eridu. In the magic square of Eridu, "H's" can be "Ch's," "Sh's," etc., and "Y's" can be "J's," and "V's" can be "W's," or "B's." Letters can also be added as transitions. While the west is grappling with "YHWH," which could be Yahway, Jabah, Ialtaboath, Ibi, Yavay, etc. etc... YHWH is Ayyappanah. HYHV, which the Hebrews called "Hayah" is Chartychawa, VHYH is Vishnu and Vayu. HVHY is Shivaya. Thus we see the damaging consequences of polluting a pure language for the sake of secret combinations. This is the difference between Sanskrit and Cuniform. Cuniform was made multidirectionally and confusing for the sake of the secret combinations of the ancient worshippers of Marduk, who is portrayed as the slayer of the serpent.

I Ayyappan did visit ancient Eridu in the form of a fish, and although the wise men of Eridu did hide my name by calling me "Ea" in conforming with the priests of Marduk, there was one man that clung to my worship named Napishtim. I blessed him and saved him from a flood. I inspired his descendant Hamurabi, who called me "Dagon." I turned from a fish into a man and wrestled with his descendant, named Israel, when he passed through a river. He called me "Paniel," which means "face of God" in his language, because he tried to interpret my name Ayyappan according to his understanding. I am the God that the Israelites could not understand. I was also with the Parthian kings who called me "Bana." Their kings were the Artabanas until Mani who was son of Bana, "Hayybeybanahir," the Living son of the Bana of Light, or my son who am Ayyappan.

The ancient wise men of Eridu wrote, "Ea's hand is in all things, and through all things. Ea knoweth all things and doeth all things. Ea is like a cloud of light particles, or Iuh, which are infinitely small particles of experiencing being, which experience all things. Ea is the God of all deep things, being infinite." The ancient Sumerians wrote this because they knew that I Ayyappan am a manifestation of the supreme soul, just as Shiva, Vishnu, Kartikaya, and Ganapati are. We are the ocean of Atman called Brahman, and when you realize that you are actually, and literally experiencing the five senses, you will also realize that this experiencing cannot arise from any physical or informational system. You will then realize the Self and go beyond birth and death. You are the very Self, smaller than a particle and larger than the Universe.—The Ayyappan in your heart.

I Ayyappan was born into this Universe after the divine Hermaphrodite emerged out of the condensed crystal called "Origen," also known as Brahma and his daughter Saraswati being born from the golden egg. I was also born after the first incarnations of Shiva and Vishnu. I was born when Vishnu incarnated as my mysterious mother Mohini, and was impregnated by my father Shiva. I was born as a son, but as I grew I developed into a woman with breasts. I am a virgin with a phallus, or a Hermaphrodite, because of my parents being Shiva and Vishnu. I first revealed myself to men in the mangrove swamps where both fish and tigers live. It is not a place for men. I castrated myself there which is the source of red waters. I teach men to immerse themselves to embrace the feminine, and to embrace death of the Ego, and death of illusion, and to experience the flow of all particles. If you sing my Mantra, you will realize the Self and attain Brahman.
